Omnia Profumi starts the new decade with numerous innovations, beginning with its logo. The Omnia design has been transformed to create an image of balance and harmony. Now, it is composed of the letter “O” with two points, and the previous logo of its founder and perfumer, Fabrizio Tagliacarne, is placed inside it.

Omnia Profumi plans to unite their Stones Collection with their White Stone Collection, whereas two perfumes - Peridoto and Onyce - are now discontinued. So, for the present the Omnia Profumi Stone collection consists of 10 fragrances, plus a new perfume to be launched in 2020.

The new fragrance OPALEROSA will be part of the Stones Collection: a very sensual fragrance, with primary notes of black rose and precious oud. Notes of bergamot, violet and patchouli were added to the sensual, harmonious main accord to create an explosion of femininity. On masculine skin OPALEROSA shows different olfactory nuances and resonates as a deep sensual perfume.

OPALEROSA is based on Fabrizio Tagliacarne's memories of an unforgettable journey to Oman during the Spring Festivals. Traveling through the ancient arts of perfumers and Omani cuisine, which have been handed down for generations, has inspired this wonderful oriental fragrance.

The new fragrance US66 will be added to the new Fabrizio Tagliacarne collection. It's a fragrance with a great story of adventure, friendships, motorcycles and passion. An olfactory pyramid of US66 includes black pepper, tonka bean, sandalwood, amber, oud and vetiver. The penetrating force of oud freshened by powerful vetiver smells like the muffled roar of a motorcycle in a silent and warm canyon, and creates a cool breeze - just like what you feel when riding high speed on a motorcycle. This is the union of sensations that perfectly represent US66.
